Thyroid therapy without a surgery

Victor Zenni, who comes to Poland from a distant Australia, elaborated thyroid physical therapy without a surgery. He also uses his device to treat other illnesses.

Mrs. Henryka's husband drives her from Radom to Warsaw to the Victor Zenni's consulting room for thyroid physical therapy. She says: "I am here already for a fifth time and the therapy helps me a lot. A goiter already disappeared, headaches also wore off and I am in a better mood."

Mrs. Henryka is treated for hyperthyroidism by an endocrinologist for a long time. She is still under his care. She says: "I take medicines, thanks to which I have normal hormone level right now. The gland itself gradually enlarged and lumps were forming inside of it. Doctors said that surgery is necessary. But I found information on treatment of the thyroid hypertrophy without a surgery. After a really strong attack of headache, I decided to come here. After a third treatment, I did USG. Four lumps disappeared and size of the fifth lump has apparently reduced itself."

Mrs. Henryka has electrodes applied to her neck, which are connected to the device that is used in the physical therapy. This device produces diadynamic currents, known as DD. This procedure lasts about 20 minutes.

Mr. Victor Zenni, who comes to Poland from a distant Australia, elaborated thyroid physical therapy without a surgery. He registered his treatment method at the Australian patent office. He says: I use a device known in medicine for 50 years. It was constructed for a first time by a French dentist. He found out that feeble electric currents relieve toothache. It was a beginning of the career of the diadynamic currents, which are mainly used today at the physical therapy. It was discovered that the currents not only relieve pain but also stimulate cells to self-treatment."

Mr. Zenni learned about treatment by currents of various frequencies in Australia. He tells that when a child with a cerebral palsy got better, Australian newspapers wrote about him on the first pages. Since a few years, he comes to Poland regularly. He co-operates with bioenergotherapists. Mr. Zenni states that one of them sent to him a woman with big protruding eyes, which caused her unbearable pain. After a first treatment with his device, pain got reduced and further treatments completely healed the woman from a hyperthyroidism. Both hypothyroidism and hyperthyroidism can be treated with this method.

Gland and lumps as well as inflammatory state of the upper airways disappear. He treats also stomach ulcer and helps in cases of pain and cirrhosis of the liver.

Mr. Victor Zenni willingly teaches how to use his method.

His therapy helps also at the depression states; therefore he heartily invites for free treatments young people, who are haunted by suicidal thoughts. He wants to help them. He ensures that after only one treatment they will feel better.

Victor Zenni treats also chronic pharyngitis.
